THEATRE COMIC BY BANKS PEACOCK

THEATRE PUNS TO KEEP YOU... PUNNY!

Got a job as a theatre lighting technician once. It was spot on!

Couple of friends have decided to put theatre style seats in their house. It will end in tiers.

Tried acting in a theatre full of farmers. Got mooded off stage.

A friend wants to give up being a postman to go on stage as a comedian, but his delivery is awful.

Broadway Post-Pandemic:

On June 11, the 76th annual Tony Awards celebrated Broadway's first full season back since the COVID-19 pandemic shutdown. These awards celebrated the 2022-2023 Broadway season, which boasted 40 new productions (up from 34 in the 2021-2022 season) and marked the third-highest-grossing season in Broadway history (behind 2018-2019 and 2017-2018). Yet, attendance was down; compared to the previous 12 seasons, this most recent ranked eighth.

Overall, though, experts believe that Broadway is as successful as ever, and it isn't going anywhere anytime soon!

Rannells and Gad are Back!

Andrew Rannells and Josh Gad are back to being a dynamic duo with "Gutenberg! The Musical".

The original "Book of Mormon" stars will reunite this fall for an original musical comedy. "Gutenberg! The Musical" follows a pair of aspiring playwrights, who perform a banker's audition for their new project: a Musical about printing press inventor Johannes Gutenberg. The two playwrights sing all the songs and play all the parts in hope that one of producers in attendance will give them a Broadway contract.

Whitehead's Passing:

Paxton Whitehead passed away on June 16th, 2023. He is best known for his work on "Friends" and his Tony-nominated turn in "Camelot".

While on the show "Friends", Whitehead played the role of Mr. Waltham, the Bloomingdale's boss of Rachel Green. He also had several other TV guest roles on shows like "The West Wing" and "Frasier". On Broadway, he had a successful career with roles in "My Fair Lady", "The Harlequin Studies", and others.
